The Niagara 35 was designed by Mark Ellis as a classic cruising sloop. The moderate displacement hull provides generous cabin accommodation. The fin keel and spade rudder make the Niagara 35 very maneuverable. When cruising, the boat can easily be handled by two people and when equipped with furling jib, all sail handling can be done from the safety of the cockpit. There is ample room in the cockpit for four to cruise comfortably, or six for day sailing.

Accommodations The cabin layout is unique and designed to maximize the 35 foot length and 11' 5" beam. The aft cabin has a single and a double quarter berth with full hanging locker on the port side, and a dresser/navigation area on the starboard. The walk through galley is located in the port side, with the gimballed propane stove and ice box located outboard, and the deep stainless steel double sink and work counter located inboard. There is plenty of cupboard and storage space for utensils and provisions. A full door separates the galley from the aft cabin. Opposite the galley, on the starboard side, is the head, which is accessible from either the forward or aft cabin. The stainless steel oval basin is set in a vanity, with a cupboard for toiletries above, and storage for towels, etc., below. The forward cabin has a teak drop leaf table and two settee berths, one of which extends into a double berth. There are two hanging lockers and a bureau. Additional storage is found below, behind and above the settees.
